

the Brown Family

missionaries to CAMBODIA

October 7, 2013

Dear Supporters and Fellow-Laborers,

We are extremely excited to announce that we have purchased our plane tickets! Our date to leave for Cambodia is January 7, 2014. Currently our support level is at 96%, and we are trusting that the Lord will bring in the last little bit in the next few months. Several conferences and church meetings are still on our schedule, and we have no doubt that we will be fully supported by the end of the year.

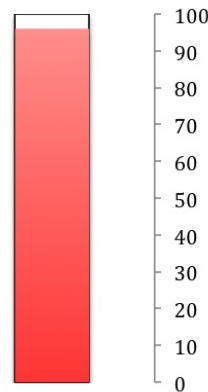

Our meetings in September were exciting and refreshing. After driving all day to be at one church for their Wednesday meeting, we were delighted when they voted to take us on for support on the spot!

Buying one-way plane tickets can be a sobering thing. The God-given goal we have worked toward for the past year and a half seems very real now. We are eager to begin this work, but it is also easy to be nervous about such a huge change. A pastor reminded us that though future challenges may seem difficult to face, God gives the grace we need at the time we need it. Being in the place of God's grace and power is the greatest place we could be. Thank God for His grace, and thank you all for your prayers. God is answering, and we expect to see continued answers to prayer!

In Christ,

Question: What type of health care will be available in Cambodia?

Answer: From what I have learned from other missionaries, there is a medical missionary who is available as well as a clinic you can go to for a small charge to get treatment for most illnesses. For major illnesses (surgeries, deliveries, etc...) it is best to go to Thailand. God is the Ultimate Physician and we are trusting Him for continued good health.
