Nikki's Notes

It has been brought to our attention that several of our lovely friends have sent us a letter or card via "snail mail." Unfortunately, if it's been within the last 12 months, we have not received it. We've spoken with the post office here in town and they don't know why our letters are not being received, but please know we are not intentionally ignoring any of you. It means the world to us to hear from each of you and I'm sorry for any miscommunication due to this fact. For now, please direct any letters to our email or to our mission board office where they can scan it to us. Thank you all for your understanding.

Dear Praying Friends,

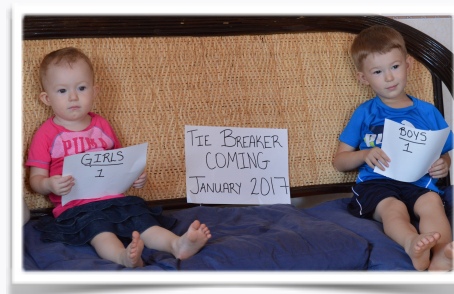

We would like to take this opportunity to praise the Lord for His provision. Many Cambodians are very fixated on material gain, and I often remind Christians that we are not to worry about these things, and that God will provide. The Lord put us to the test this past month. I lost my wallet one day in circumstances that offered us no hope of recovering it. Since we live in a cash-only economy, a fair amount of money was lost as well. We tried to resign ourselves to the loss and trust that God would provide for us, though we had no idea how. The very next day, my wallet, including ALL the money in it, was returned to us. The whole situation was nothing short of a miracle. Our faith was strengthened, and we were able to testify of God's goodness to many around us through this circumstance. God truly does provide, and we are so grateful to Him, and to the many of you who are the instruments of God's provision to us.

With great joy we announce that the Brown mission team will be growing! The Lord has blessed us with another child, due this upcoming January. While we are very excited about this, at the latest doctor's appointment, they informed us that there is a risk of serious complications for both mother and child. We greatly appreciate your prayers in this matter. Also, please continue to pray for all of our health, as we continue to teach at the church and do regular Bible studies in the village.
