Nikki's Notes

We recently finished up a long weekend of celebrating Chinese New Year. Although Cambodia has their own New Year (coming in April this year), many people in our town who are of Chinese descent or have some sort of Chinese heritage still participate in traditional Chinese celebrations. There were many types of parades going on in our town. A dragon procession was leaving a nearby neighbor's house when we caught their eye. They wanted to get a picture with the foreigner kids. Once the pictures were taken they headed out and about the town in their Chinese costumes. A unique experience for sure!

Faithful Friends, Family, and Supporters,

"Grandpa" who lives next door has been quite ill for a while. He has been to several different doctors, who haven't been able to help him, and now is back at home. Just recently, he agreed to let me come visit him daily to read the teachings of Jesus and to pray with him. We don't know how long he has left on this earth and are thrilled at this opportunity. Please pray that he will understand the Gospel and be willing to repent and believe on the Savior.

Visiting "Grandpa"

Since moving to Memot, the local police have required us to come in monthly to renew our permission to live here. Lately, our relationship with the police chief has been a bit strained, and we would appreciate prayers that we would have wisdom in knowing how to deal with the situation. Our legal status here is not in any jeopardy, but in a relationship-based society like Cambodia, favor with government officials is important to maintain. We are confident that the Lord can use the prayers of his people to alleviate this difficulty.

We have just finished developing a new tract, entitled "The Living God". The great difference between religion and Christianity is our living Lord, Jesus Christ, who is able and willing to save sinners. This new tract is currently being printed, and we are excited to start using it in evangelism. Pray that souls will be awakened through the power of God's Word.

For His Name's Sake,

The Brown Family
