Nikki's Notes

A little over two weeks ago we moved into our new home! While we are very thankful for the last house the Lord provided, we feel very blessed to have found this "upgrade." We now have 3 bedrooms, an office for Matt to do the radio recordings, and a schoolroom for the kids and I. On top of that, this place has a yard with a gate around it and even has a front door! When we first moved in, this house did not have an indoor kitchen. However, we were able to find a sink and have a metal table built to use as our counter top thus providing us with a working kitchen! The kids were sad to leave our old neighborhood (less than half a mile away), but have already made many new friends here. This new place was a direct answer to many prayers!

Faithful Friends, Family, and Supporters,

This past month has seen a good bit of change in our personal lives as we moved to a new location here in town. While we believe this change will be helpful to our family, it is also already opening up many new relationships and chances to teach the Bible, for which we are very thankful. We have begun teaching a group of children here weekly and are trying to get some of their parents to take some time to learn about Jesus as well. Pray that the Lord will open the hearts of our new neighbors and give us boldness in proclaiming His truth.

On a side note, those who have prayed for our relations with the government will be glad to know that a recent unexpected paperwork check, we were commended for having everything in order. Even though we finally got it right, we still got to have a "mug shot" with the police.

Paperwork check!

Plans continue to go forward for our upcoming medical furlough to the US for the birth of our baby. We have tickets for October 23, and appreciate your prayers for all the details that must be attended to between now and then.

For His Name's Sake,
The Brown Family
