Nikki's Notes

A few days before Thanksgiving, the kids enjoyed reading books, making crafts, and baking goodies all in anticipation for the upcoming holiday.

Since the country has officially opened back up, we had the opportunity to get together with a few American missionary families for Thanksgiving. We all met up in the capital city for a couple of days and enjoyed a fun time of food and fellowship. We ate the traditional foods like turkey, dressing, potatoes, and pies. It was so refreshing to be with everyone again. God has been so good to give us a big family of missionaries over here to celebrate with.

Faithful Friends, Family, and Supporters,

We thank the Lord that COVID seems to be “over” here in Cambodia, at least for the time being. The prime minister officially declared the country open, including for church services! There are still mask requirements, but especially in our rural area, life is back to normal. With this freedom, we look forward to being able to start up some ministries that have been on hold for a while. One of these is evangelistic children’s Bible clubs. Since the middle of last month, we have been trying to get that started back up. Please pray that this can be a Christ-honoring and effective ministry.

We are able to be more open with our weekly church services, and had another visitor just last week! Continue to pray for the spiritual growth of this group, and that the Lord will give wisdom for the road forward. We have recently met two young couples who profess faith in Christ but have no church home. Pray that they will realize the importance of making time for fellowship with other believers and learning God’s Word.

Christmas is coming up, and while it is not a holiday in Cambodia, it provides an opportunity for special events and ministries. Please pray for us as we plan special programs to build up the church and to reach out to the community.

For His Name’s Sake,

The Brown Family
