Nikki's Notes

We had some sweet friends travel out to help us move recently. We've all been in country a long while, and were commenting on some of the new features this house has for us to enjoy. Tall counter tops in the kitchen, sinks in the bathrooms, and an air conditioning unit in our school room are just some of the new amenities we get to enjoy. This entire journey of house building has been a step by step process of watching the Lord work out the details. I'm so thankful He's allowed us to build this home and I pray it would be a place that can bring much honor and glory to Him. Please come visit us in our new home! 😊

Faithful Friends, Family, and Supporters,

Just last month we moved into our new house! We are very thankful to be in a place with long-term stability. Since we currently host the church in our home, this means a change to the church location as well. Please pray for the transition to this new location, and for the new outreach opportunities that even a local move like this opens up. One of these new opportunities is in our children's ministry. Several neighborhood kids enthusiastically attended the children's service for the very first time last week. After a lesson on Moses and the burning bush, I asked a review question: "Who spoke to Moses out of the bush?" A young girl raised her hand and promptly answered, "Indra," naming a god from Buddhist mythology. It brought home to us again why we are doing this, and we rejoice in this chance (and hopefully many more!) to tell these young people about the God who created them and loves them.

First service at new location

Cambodia's tragic history of violence in the 1970s and 80s means that I have met men who fought on many different sides of the brutal civil wars of that era. Recently, for the very first time, I met a man who fought with the Viet Cong! His name is Tree, and he is the grandfather of a girl who has faithfully attended our children's program for several years. The Lord opened the door for me to have a few gospel conversations with him recently, and he told me that he believes in both Buddha and Jesus - a fairly common viewpoint here. Please pray that God will open Grandpa Tree's heart to the gospel and work in this entire family.

For His Name's Sake,
The Brown Family
