JULY NEWS 2005

Dear Praying Friends,

“If any of you lack wisdom, let Him ask of God, that giveth to all men liberally and upbraideth not; and it shall be given unto him.” (James 1:5) In order to claim the promise of this verse, a person must be humble enough and smart enough to know that he does not have all the answers. I am definitely one who realizes that I do not know all the answers in life and that I need God’s direction in my life each day. That God is willing to impart wisdom to the unwise man is a wonderful promise that we should claim often. But how often is it, that we are willing to admit to God and others, we don’t know it all? I pray it is often.

July was a wonderful month of ministry opportunities. Junior camp took place at the beginning of the month with one of our young people who attend youth group trusting Christ as his personal Savior. We also had a “Christmas in July” fellowship in which at least one unsaved person attended. Next was our continuous cricket match between the youth groups and the church. Over 50 people attended the match with many being unsaved visitors. And finally, was our after school Bible clubs. We held Bible clubs at two different schools simultaneously. The average attendance at each was around 25. To our knowledge, there were at least 4 professions of faith during the week. Needless to say, by the end of the month we were tired but thankful for all the Lord did.

We are steadily making plans to return to the States for a short furlough in late November. Please pray for us as we seek the visas needed for the kids and that the Lord will supply the right men to supply pastor while we are in the States. Please also pray that the contacts made during the month will show further interest.

Thank you for sharing in our ministry here. May the Lord bless you with many ministry opportunities this month.

Sincerely,

Kelly Gilliam and family
